

Catalina Acosta Rivera

Frontend Developer

With a solid foundation in JavaScript, React JS, and Ruby on Rails, acquired through hands-on experience, I am well-equipped to excel as a German-speaking frontend developer. Having completed a rigorous web development bootcamp at Le Wagon in Berlin and actively contributed to collaborative projects, I've refined my skills and developed a keen eye for crafting innovative solutions. Being a highly motivated and caring person, I thrive in sociable environments and learn quickly to adapt to new surroundings. Passionate about creating products that meet market needs, I am excited about gaining further knowledge and growing in the IT industry.

jeronimo escobar design visit here

Built from scratch, the React application highlights the diverse portfolio of designer and architect Jeronimo Escobar, featuring personalized components tailored to client specifications. Key features include:

- Seamless contact form functionality with Email JS integration on the Contact page.
- Smooth navigation facilitated by React Router DOM.
- Enhanced interactivity and responsiveness achieved through the implementation of the useState hook.
- Reliable deployment and accessibility ensured through hosting on Netlify.

FindMyMidwife check the code

A great work tool for midwives. It has everything they need in one place: incoming requests from moms, chat, calendar, patient info and much more.

- Project lead: original idea of the web app and vision of the product. Guided daily stand-ups and reviewed pull requests on GitHub.
- Participated in building the backend with Ruby on Rails 7 and designing the schema of the database (PostgreSQL).
- Delivered complete features from backend to frontend (the chatroom, for example) and manipulated page behavior using Stimulus JS.
- Tech stack: Ruby on Rails, JavaScript, Bootstrap, CSS and HTML.
